1. Restaurants for Dine-Out:

Where we could find the best lechon and they all pointed us to Rico's Lechon, pioneer of the famous Spicy Lechon.

Rico's Lechon

Laguna Garden

It is a full-service restaurant which specializes in Filipino cuisine, so one can expect homegrown favorites like sinigang (sour soup), kare-kare (ox tail stew), and chopsuey (stir-fried vegetables).

Seafood City

The island of Cebu is also known for sutukil, in which seafood is cooked in any of three ways: sugba, tuwa, kilaw (grill, stew, raw). Most sutukil restaurants are open-air stalls in public markets, but Isla Sugbu Seafood City aims to offer the sutukil experience in a modern setting. Diners can pick from live seafood in tanks, or fresh catch laid in ice. Their wide selection of seafood includes lobsters, crabs, shrimps, scallops, squid, prawns, salmon, tangigue (Spanish mackerel), bangus (milkfish), and many more. They offer a paluto-all-you-can package which allows customers to enjoy unlimited servings at a flat rate.
